

What are some of the dimensions of you?

Create a globe lantern that expresses who you are.

MATERIALS:

- 10 paper strips
- Sharpie markers
- 1 piece of string
- 2 paper fasteners
- 1 plastic cup

- I'm very generous
- I am sensitive to others
- I'm beautiful and ambitious
- I am special

1 Brainstorm.

Before assembling your globe lantern, on a separate sheet of paper, brainstorm a response to the prompt "What are some of the dimensions of you?".

2 Time to write.

Now that you have written down some dimensions of you, write your response on 8 of your paper strips, leaving 2 blank.

• Full of love to spread •

3 Arrange your strips.

Before you begin assembling your globe, remember to have all of your words facing outward. If they are on the inside of the globe, they will be harder to see!

4 Stack + Fasten.

Stack all of your strips and insert paper fastener through one end and fasten.

5 Attach the Cup.

On the other end, put your paper fastener through the paper holes and cup, then fasten.

6 Form a globe.

Spread out the strips to form a globe.

7 Attach the string.

Tie string to the fastener on the top for a handle.

8 Let there be light!

Place the battery votive candle in cup. Don't forget, you can bring your lantern with you to InLight while you check out the artwork!

Bleached, a poem written by Laura Neal is the audio poem that accompanies "the wait of it" which will be showing at Oakwood Arts, as a part of 1708 Gallery's InLight Exhibition

*"Bleached
Bleached by blackness
Bleached by blessing
Bleached by hardship
Bleached by lesson
Bleached by joy
Bleached by truth
Bleached by magic
Bleached by youth
Bleached by spirit
Bleached by success
Bleached by confidence
Bleached by happiness
Bleached by booty
Bleached by curls
Bleached by expression
Bleach back the world"*
